INTRODUCTION

O you, our friends, who cannot personally visit the new Vantine Store, at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, New York, and there view the thousands of objects of Oriental art and utility which are being selected and sent to us constantly by our representatives in the Far East, we are sending this book to indicate the versatility of the Vantine stock.

We cannot, even by picture, convey to you the true atmosphere of the goods—that rare combination of art and usefulness which appeals at once to your sense of comfort and artistic repose.

It is for this quality that the Oriental stands out alone—silhouetted against the world's background of commercialism. In no other quarter of the globe is the artistic furnishing of the home given such consideration.

We have imported only those articles which we know, from long experience, to be practical for the American home. Prices considered, they are superior to articles of domestic manufacture intended for the same utilities.

This book contains many of the newer arrivals from the Orient—things which you can purchase by mail with the same assurance of satisfaction as though you personally selected in our store. But it is by no means a complete list; and if there are things not described herein, in which you are interested, we shall be pleased to send descriptions, and photographs, if required.

When you do come to New York, kindly remember that Vantine's is the one place above all others that you should visit—as important in its educational and exhibition character as many of the famous institutions of the metropolis. It is America's most intimate point of contact with the Far East, and being centrally located is easily accessible from every steamship pier and railroad depot.

A reproduction of a famous French designer's poster, in which the Japanese styles of 1560 have formed the inspiration for the Spring and Summer modes of 1914.

OUT of the old, old Orient, with its picturesque pagodas, its quaint minarets, and riot of rainbow hues, comes the inspiration for Milady's styles for the Spring and Summer of 1914.

Never has the Oriental tendency in women's attire been so apparent, and to judge from the number of new creations that are almost daily designed, the adaptation of Far Eastern dress to the Occidental modes of the hour has only just begun.

Individuality in style is, after all, the secret of the well-dressed woman, and in no country does the mode of dress offer such opportunity for originality as that of the Mystical Lands beyond the Sea.

Always the headquarters in America for the best the Orient offers, Vantine's stock of Oriental silks is larger today than at any time in our half century's history. Anticipating the increased demand for these beautiful hand-loom fabrics, months ago our resident representatives in the Orient searched near and far for fabrics particularly adaptable to the prevailing fashions.

At Vantine's, therefore, may be found an infinite variety of Oriental silks in innumerable shades and tints, checks, stripes, brocades, flowered and broche effects, all of which fit perfectly in color and weave, from Empire to bouffant, the smartest creations of the world's most famous designers.

Four beautiful new creations in women's fashionable gowns, illustrating the modified kimono sleeve, the popular Japanese collar and obi (or sash) effect. (Courtesy of Woman's Home Companion.)

PONGEE silk is perhaps the most popular Oriental fabric we import. The cocoons from which this silk is originally derived are produced by uncultivated silk worms which are collected by the native farmers throughout the greater part of China. The subsequent warping and weaving is done on crude home-constructed warpers and hand-loom of bamboo. The natives market this fabric in the raw state and it is later boiled-off or de-gummed, leaving the pure silk fabric in its natural color, in which condition we import it.

Because of its great durability, Vantine's Chinese pongee is particularly appropriate for children's dresses, rompers, men's and women's automobile coats, men's shirts, office coats, women's shirtwaists and numerous other purposes.

We can furnish this quaint Oriental fabric in six weights at per yard: 33 inches wide, 85c., $1.25, $1.50, $2.00, $3.00 and $3.50.

It has all the smartness of linen. Will not wrinkle readily, improves with washing, and requires no pressing. Comes in plain delf, gray, blue, ecru, pink, green, brown and tan. Price, 30 inches wide, per yard, 30c.

An effective arrangement of Japanese toweling as applied to dining room decoration. In addition to the green color shown, the designs illustrated may be had in pink and white, brown and white, yellow and white and blue and white.

JAPANESE Toweling or "Tenugui," as it is known in Japan, is an interesting Oriental fabric of hand-twilled cotton with a linen finish, on which are hand-stencilled patterns of rare and artistic designs. In the Orient it is used for drying the face and hands after ablution, so when lifting a towel to his face the native beholds some fair scene that reminds him either of the beauty of his country, the habits of wild life, or the history of the race from which he sprung.

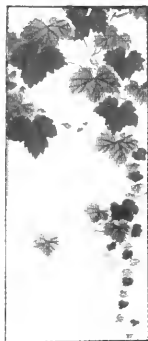

The American housekeeper, however, ever alert for any distinctive and individual fabric that will increase the attractiveness of her home, immediately realized the possibilities of this quaint Oriental creation, and it is really astonishing what a vogue Japanese Toweling now has.

It is a most fascinating fabric to work with, for somehow it suggests uses to which one would never have dreamed of putting it. Aside from its use in the dining room, as shown in the illustration above, it is also used extensively in bedrooms where its artistic designs lend themselves to the making of bedspreads, upholstery covers, dresser and chiffonier scarfs, couch covers, laundry bags, etc.

Our stock of Japanese Toweling is the largest to be found anywhere, and includes numerous designs and colorings to be had in no other establishment.

Vantine's Japanese Toweling is 12 inches wide, and comes in bolts containing 10 towels or yards with one pattern to each yard. We, therefore, cannot cut small samples, for in so doing would destroy the design, but we shall be pleased to forward a sample towel in any design or quality upon receipt of 10 cents. On the opposite page we illustrate an assortment of designs which are particularly suitable for Spring and Summer.

The paper lantern (Japanese Chochin) plays an important part in Japan. The houses and verandas are lighted with them at night, and with their help one picks his way afoot or in Jinrikisha on the street. They illuminate the water on the evening boat ride; tea houses, theatres and other pleasure resorts are distinguished by rows of variegated paper lanterns, and in the great temple feasts the Chochin are a feature in the parades. Often a whole street, even an entire quarter in the vicinity of the temple is adorned with paper lanterns hanging on bamboo canes, sometimes canopied with large umbrella frame, whose long beams are trimmed with white and red paper flowers. Our assortments are unequalled for beauty and comprise all varieties.

Gold Medallion China

LONG before the Orient opened its doors to Western trading, Gold Medallion China — “The aristocrat of the chinaware world” — was the pride of the American house-wife.

¶ Then as now it represented all that was best in chinaware and fortunate, indeed, was the woman who could point to a limited collection of it.

¶ The Gold Medallion China imported by us is manufactured in exactly the same manner as that brought home by the Far Eastern traders of early Colonial days, and its exquisite colorings and artistic designs are more popular to-day than ever.

¶ For the hostess who seeks Chinaware of distinctiveness and individuality, there is nothing that can compare with Gold Medallion, and being an “open pattern,” you may buy an entire set or only a few pieces and add to these from time to time until your set is complete.

¶ Because of its artistic decorative appearance and serviceability it is particularly appropriate for wedding gifts, and as our stock always includes a large supply of all pieces, the recipient is afforded the pleasure of collecting additional pieces from time to time, as needed.

For complete price list of Gold Medallion China, see page 48.

Canton China

EVERYBODY knows Canton China—the always popular “willow” pattern—with its pagodas, bridges, streams, boats, little figures of men and women, and the love birds. A quaint legend has it that the story depicted on the china tells how a mandarin had an only daughter, Li-Chi, who fell in love with her father’s secretary, Chang.

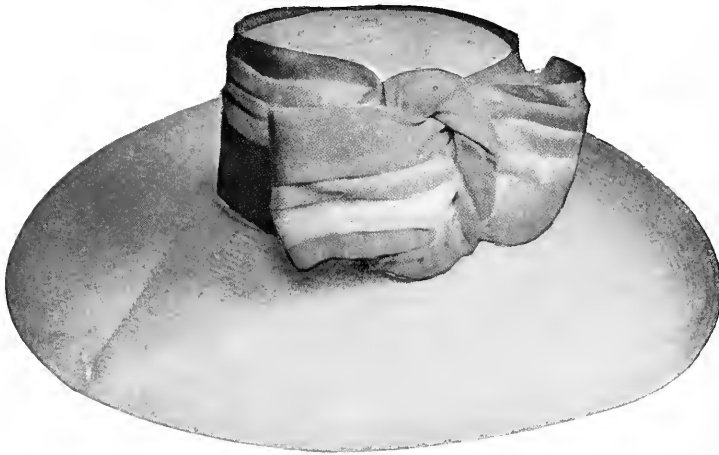

❑ The mandarin forbade the match, so the lovers eloped, hiding for a time in a gardener’s cottage, until at last they attempted to make their escape to an island which was Chang’s home. The mandarin pursued them, whip in hand and would have killed them had not the gods come to the rescue and changed the two into a pair of turtle doves.

❑ In the design will be seen the mandarin’s house with a fence round it, the gardener’s cottage, a bridge over which the mandarin ran after his daughter, who, with a staff in hand, was accompanied by Chang. Above are the turtle doves, and beyond is a boat crossing to the island. At the time of the elopement the willow was shedding its leaves, hence the name of the design.

❑ For over half a century Vantine’s has been the headquarters in this country for Canton China, and in no other establishment in the United States may be found such a complete assortment as we always carry in stock.

For complete price list of Canton China, see page 48.

To be smartly gowned nowadays, jewelry must have a decorative as well as an intrinsic value, and with the Oriental tendency in dress so predominant, it is not surprising that Oriental beads are such an important accessory to the gown of the well dressed woman.

The Vantine collection of precious and semi-precious Oriental stones is probably the largest to be found outside of the Orient, and includes an almost unlimited selection of the popular Jade, Amber and Coral which are at present being worn so extensively.

Genuine Jade comes from the Koulkun Mountains in West China, where it is found in the rocky beds of flowing streams. It is held in such high esteem and is so sacredly revered by the Chinese, that practically every native of China wears a piece of Jade as an amulet to guard from violent harm.

The great value set upon Amber, which at one time was more valuable than gold, is seen in the care with which objects of this material were interred with their possessors in the burial-mounds of very early date. According to the Greek legend the sisters of Phaeton, mourning and weeping at his unhappy end, attracted the pity of the gods, who mercifully changed them into trees, and their tears, still flowing, became Amber.

Coral, which we import from the Orient, is the hard skeletons of various marine organisms, and from remote times has been highly prized for jewelry and for articles of personal ornamentation. It is found on the bottom of the ocean, from where it is gathered by coral fishermen.

The jewel craft of Vantine's is something apart—entirely different—from the ordinary jewelry of domestic manufacture. The clever conceptions cannot be had in any other establishment, and they solicit the particular attention of those in search of the curious, the quaint and the beautiful in jewel work. Among the moderately priced pieces are those shown above, which are in hand-made Turkish design of oxidized sterling silver, set with semi-precious stones, everyone of which is genuine. Any design shown may be had with setting of amethyst, topaz, lapis lazuli, carnelian, moonstone, turquoise, matrix and moss agate.

(In ordering please state stone preferred and when selecting rings give size of finger.)

"Howo" Chinaware is Japanese ware, pleasing in design and very serviceable. Ever since Chinaware has been known, its dainty color scheme of blue and white has been much admired. By applications of modern science it has been made particularly strong and durable, and is therefore suited to everyday use.

It is said, when the "Howo" bird descended from Heaven, there appeared a Wise Man who ruled the country so peacefully that the peasants enjoyed abundant harvests, which spread happiness throughout the land, filling the hearts of all the Japanese people with joy and gladness.

In Japan this design is generally called "Howo Moyoi"; this is combined with "Kiku" or "Chrysanthemum," which is the Queen of Flowers and the Emperor's Crest or Coat of Arms, and representative of the Japanese nation. It is of ancient, historic origin and very unique.

Vantine's Bon Voyage Baskets

These delightful Vantine creations are filled with various assortments of Oriental delicacies, such as stuffed cherries, nuts, dates, perfumed candies, etc., etc. Assortments vary according to price. Price, $1.25, $2.50, $5 up to $25, packed artistically in Japanese hand-woven baskets which are tied with ribbons of different colors. They are the daintiest au revoir compliment the traveler can receive, and incidentally they are appreciated just as much by the stay-at-homes. All baskets to be delivered to steamers are delivered paid—with donor's card enclosed—direct from our store to the pier of any vessel sailing from Boston, Philadelphia or New York. (Orders for baskets to be sent out of town should include sufficient money to pay express charges. Any balance remaining will be promptly refunded.)

Japanese Stone Lantern and Dwarf Wistaria

In Japan the humblest home invariably possesses some sort of a garden, while the gardens of the well-to-do are often veritable places of enchantment. The typical Japanese garden is laid out with winding paths, miniature hills, streams or lakes, and frequently one or more waterfalls. Trees and shrubs are trimmed and trained in curious fashion, while color is an ever present contrasting beautifier in the shape of blooming bushes as well as those bearing only brilliant hued leaves and occasionally well arranged flower beds.

The special value of the Japanese garden in this country lies in the availability of small areas. Often the size of a piece of land precludes the possibility of an Italian garden or a naturalistic treatment of the American plan. But a Japanese garden may be had in all its completeness in a space where one would have said there was scarcely room for a flower bed. Other systems copy nature on only one set of terms, those of life size, but the Japanese method, while it can be and often is developed on a large scale, may also be reduced from natural size through all stages to a tiny miniature.

Aside from this great advantage, the Japanese garden has other qualities which make it valuable for adaptation by American gardeners. It furnishes a new note for those seeking original treatment of their places, while at the same time it has a beauty which grows upon acquaintance—and there is no kind of garden which has about it a richer amount of sentiment and tradition than the Japanese.

Recognizing the rapidly growing inclination on the part of owners of American homes to make their gardens more and more an out-of-door part of the home itself, Vantine's maintain a special Japanese gardening department which is prepared at all times to furnish Japanese garden ornaments, including such pieces as stone lanterns, stone animals (in the shape of frogs, cows, etc.), bronze lanterns, buddhas, kongs (large pottery jardinières) and various other ornaments.

To those wishing to beautify and create in the exterior environment of the home a refinement and artistic atmosphere which will outlive that to be found in the famous gardens of Italy, we offer the service of this department, and upon request will furnish gratis full information, suggestions, and where necessary photographs and sketches.
